Strike Southward Across Odon River and Drive Germans Back Along the Orne — British Wedge Becomes Broad Battering Ram.

By International News Service
Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 10—British and Canadian armored and infantry forces, having virtually completed the conquest of the vital rail hub and river port of Caen, struck southward across the Odon River today and drove the Germans back to a line along the Orne.

Battlefront dispatches said the attack was launched at 7.30 a. m. (1.30 a. m. E. W. T.) and initial objectives were quickly reached.

At 11 a. m. (5 a. m. E. W. T.) the new attack was reported to be "going well."

A British wedge aimed southeast of the Caen sector has now become a "broad battering ram," these dispatches said. Other British forces are pushing south and west of the rubble-strewn city.

All resistance in a village north of Caen has been wiped out, according to these reports, and another projected counter-attack in the Grainville sector has been broken up.

Several hundred prisoners were reported taken in the new push beyond Caen, but German resistance south of the Orne remains very strong.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that rocket-firing Typhoons have started a series of spectacular attacks which brought ground support technique to a new degree of efficiency.

They swept in only 10 feet above the heads of cheering British and Canadian troops driving into Caen to send their rockets hissing into German gun emplacements a bare 50 yards ahead of the advancing troops.

Mrs. Jesse Stackhouse Dies at The Ellis Home

Mrs. Ella Y. Stackhouse, widow of Jesse L. Stackhouse, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tilton Ellis, 539 Swain street, yesterday, where she had made her home for the past 10 years. Condition of Mrs. Stackhouse, who had been in ill health for some time, had become more aggravated a week ago, she suffering a heart ailment.

A former resident of Edgely, she was 87 years of age. Three sisters survive. Mrs. Stackhouse was a member of Bristol Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. James R. Gailey will conduct the service on Wednesday at two p. m., at the Morden funeral chapel, 133 Otter street. Interment will be in St. James' Churchyard. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

Bride and Five Attendants Are Costumed in White

With the bride and her quintet of attendants gowned entirely in white, with the light of the altar candles causing the scattered silver sequins on the costumes to glisten, the Favata-Galizia wedding yesterday morning attracted a large company in St. Ann's R. C. Church.

The bride is Miss Antoinette Marie Galizia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo Galizia, of 426 Logan street, she becoming the wife of Mr. Louis Russell Favata, Trenton, N. J. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Peter Pinci, the former Miss Galizia's father giving her in marriage, at the 11 o'clock mass.

Miss Frances Tamburella, organist, provided the accompaniment for the church choir, and also played the bridal marches.

The bride wore a gown of white illusion net with mushroom train. The gown featured an illusion neck-line with an off-the-shoulder effect, short puffed sleeves, and full peplum. Dashes of silver sequins were scattered over the billowy folds of the gown. An illusion veil, 20 yards long, was held in place by clusters of flowers on either side of her head. The veil was edged with French lace, this matching the three-quarter length French lace gloves. Her bouquet was composed of white orchids.

Miss Ann Galizia, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor; and the bridesmaids were inclusive of: the Misses Jeanne Indelicato, Clara Carbellini, Jennie DiBlasio, and Micheline Galizia, the latter also a sister of the bride. These young women wore gowns of white illusion net, patterned like that of the bride, but being minus trains. On their white net gloves appeared silver sequins; and their white net hats were shaped to resemble flowers, they having sequin trim. Cascade bouquets of white roses and gardenias, with an orchid in the center of each, were carried by the attendants.

Mr. Frank S. Speranza, Trenton, N. J., a nephew of the groom, was best man for the occasion; and ushers included Messrs. Frank M. Speranza, Trenton, N. J., another nephew of the groom; Nicholas Galizia, brother of the bride.

Members of the bridal party were entertained at dinner in Trenton, N. J., immediately following the ceremony, and last evening a large company attended a reception in Mutual Aid Hall. Upon their return from a honeymoon, Mr. Favata and bride will reside at 941 W. State street, Trenton, N. J.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

(By International News Service)

British and Canadian armored and infantry forces, supported by devastating aerial attacks and naval bombardment were reported to have driven the Germans out of the vital rail hub and river port of Caen and forced them back to a line along the River Orne.

Forward units of the British Second Army struck at the south bank of the Orne where the Germans withdrew the mass of their forces in what appeared to be an attempt to make the British force their way across the river.

Fifty miles to the west, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's First American Army consolidated its grip on

Father of Bristol Resident Dies at Home in Phila.

Henry C. Nebig, husband of the late Martha Nebig, 87, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Walter Hongler, West Oak Lane, yesterday. The cause of death was arterio-sclerosis.

The deceased was a native of Philadelphia and was employed previously to his retirement 18 years ago as a stationery engineer. He was affiliated with the following organizations: Red Men, Independent Order of Americans, Engineers' Association of the Philadelphia Public Schools and the Advent Lutheran Church of Philadelphia.

The survivors are daughters, Mrs. Walter Hongler, Mrs. William Wildman, Philadelphia; Mrs. Herman Demmeler, Bensalem Township, Mrs. William H. Wilkinson, Bristol; one sister, Louisa Gramlich, Philadelphia.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 from 905 West Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, with burial in Hillside Cemetery. Friends may call tomorrow evening from seven until nine o'clock. The Rev. F. E. Eichner, pastor of the Advent Church, will officiate.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

The Brooder

Washington, July 8. Apparently Mr. Wendell Willkie broods more bitterly as the weeks go by. Time seems not to heal his wounded spirit nor assuage his personal disappointments. Nor does it lessen the rather acute pain of the exceedingly unfortunate position into which he has worked himself. The question of how he is to get out with any credit to himself seems one to which he is as far from an answer as ever.

FRIENDLY newspapermen and politicians who have seen Mr. Willkie since the Republican convention report him still wrestling with his conscience and his principles but not quite sure in which direction they are going to propel him. They also report him as resentful toward some of his best friends now enthusiastically supporting Governor Dewey, full of animosity toward writers who have ventured to regard his attitude as not admirable, and, in addition, to be developing a strange persecution complex which makes him feel that some people are trying to "dragoon" him into support of the ticket, that he is being "threatened with punishment," that terrible pressure is being put on him, that "heaven and earth" are being moved to make him "fall in line."

JUST WHO are these persons who are trying to "dragoon" him, what kind of punishment is threatened, whence comes this awful pressure and who has moved "heaven and earth" is not in the least clear. It is all very anonymous and mysterious and though obviously these ideas come straight from Mr. Willkie, newspapermen are not supposed to quote him directly. Nor do they—in their written accounts. One extremely well predisposed journalist came away the other day

SPECIAL POLICE, WHO SERVE BRISTOL WITHOUT RECOMPENSE, SPEND NUMEROUS HOURS ON DUTY; LIVES RULED TO EXTENT BY BELLS AND SIRENS

It's bells and sirens for the special police of Bristol, for it seems that their lives are now ruled by such.

They must listen to the fire alarms, for they go on duty whenever there is a second alarm. They must keep their ears attuned to air raid signals or air raid tests, for that means additional periods of service. And when their telephones ring there might be involved calls for special police duty at almost any spot in Bristol.

The special police of Bristol, who perfected an organization about a year ago, have gratuitously put in many profitable hours of service which benefit every resident of Bristol. The special police organization is an outgrowth of the original emergency police, which latter group came into being when there was a need for protection from possible air raids. The majority of the 16 who are now sworn in as special borough policemen, were former zone chiefs in the emergency police set-up.

The organization was perfected

through the assistance of Chief of Police Linford J. Jones and Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo. The 16 men sworn in as special borough police, have the full authority of regular police officers. They followed an intensive eight-week course of law enforcement and self-protection at the municipal building. The instructors were Mr. Russo, a fingerprint expert from Philadelphia; and Major Martin of the Hershey School for Pennsylvania State Police and Chief Jones.

Such a keen interest have the men taken in their work that the greater number of them purchased their own revolvers, which entailed considerable outlay of money.

Money for uniforms and other equipment was raised through various types of benefits conducted by the men, and they worked for all that they have. They each have a policeman's uniform, similar to those of other Bristol police officers, identification card, night stick, blackjack, flashlight and revolver.

Serving without any recompense whatever, they are on call at all times of the day and night, and many a night they have literally served as "watchmen" when long hours of service were required at certain points in efforts to trap would-be thieves. Frequently on such occasions they serve in relays of two, three or four hours. Sometimes their duties call for plain clothes.

But with their police uniforms it is not necessary for the men to choose between two uniforms, depending on the occasion, for if an air raid test sounds they quickly don the police uniforms, as more authority is thus vested and they can be of greater aid to the townspeople. Thus Bristol's regular police force is augmented and the town well "covered."

J. S. Lynn, Mill street jeweler, is captain of the special police, with Arthur Pilla as sergeant, and Vernon Werline and August Arnold as corporals. Other members are: John H. Brehm, George R. Ritter, Samuel Friedman, John Ennis, Jr., Edmund N. Sampson, Jr., Fred H. Luckhardt, James Unruh, Arthur Seyfert, Sidney W. Popkin, Edward Sparring, Marvin Collins and Edwin Harker. During air raid tests the men take over their usual posts as zone chiefs, etc.

Frequently Chief Jones, when needing additional officers, calls Mr. Lynn, requesting services of a half dozen or dozen men.

The special police, before their present organization, aided as emergency police at fires at the Hunter Manufacturing Corp. and

CARVERSVILLE MAN IS HELD IN ATTACK

Vincent J. Radosin, 30, In County Jail Under $5,000 Bail

LITTLE GIRL INVOLVED

DOYLESTOWN, July 10—A red baseball cap and greasy trousers, a pink blanket and a grey automobile, plus clever police investigation led to the arrest at the end of the week of a sex fiend who has confessed to a criminal assault on a nine-year-old Doylestown girl, on the afternoon of June 28, as she was returning home from the local swimming pool.

The accused is Vincent J. Radosin, 30, a farm machinery mechanic, living in Carversville. His draft status is "2-A" which means that he is "important to the community because of his special type of work"—repairing farm machinery. He's married to a former Doylestown girl, but they have no children.

Radosin, who has been in the county jail since he signed a confession, was held under $5,000 bail after he waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace William Wrigley, Edison. He is charged with rape, assault and battery with intent to commit rape.

County Detective William L. Stackhouse, prosecutor in the case, and Officer C. Clifford Beck, of Doylestown police, assisted by Trooper J. J. Shovelin, of the state police, have been working continuously on the case since the crime was reported shortly after it occurred.

After signing the confession, Radosin took the police over the entire route he traveled on the afternoon of June 28, when he picked up the nine-year-old girl. He explained everything in detail, with the exception that he denied the actual assault. Police say that physicians, however, examined the child, and found that an assault had been made.

Radosin related to the police how he left some farm work in Doylestown township on the afternoon of June 28, and drove to Doylestown. About 2.30 he said he was driving on Spruce street when he stopped his car and asked the little girl if

URGES CAR OWNERS NOT TO Delay Car Inspection

Motor vehicle inspection has become a patriotic duty in the wartime transportation emergency. Secretary of Revenue David W. Harris declared today in a statement urging car owners not to delay in having their vehicles inspected in the current inspection period which ends July 31st.

"Today, more than ever," Secretary Harris said, "motor vehicle inspection is important because it has become a wartime conservation measure. There must be no breakdown of the nation's transportation system in this critical period. Every car that is kept rolling on the home front means that much more help for those who are courageously fighting for us on the battle fronts. A broken down car won't carry workers to a munitions plant or a tank factory and still worse it may be responsible for an accident which might result in valuable workers never returning to the job of turning out the tools of war so badly needed today."

"It is the patriotic duty of the motor vehicle owner today to see to it that his car is fit and can be safely driven. Official inspection will determine that. If your car has not been inspected in this current inspection period which ends July 31st, have it done today. It cannot be legally operated after July 31st without a current inspection 'sticker' on the windshield. There can be no extension of the period."

DFC IS AWARDED TO SGT. C. HUTCHINSON

Receives Award for Courage, Skill, Extraordinary Achievement

IN MANY ASSAULTS

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England, July 10—The Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded to Tech. Sgt. Calvin C. Hutchinson, 29, top turret gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress, son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hutchinson, of Pine street, and whose wife, Mrs. Dorothy Hutchinson, lives on Route 1, Bristol.

The award was made for courage, skill and "extraordinary achievement" while flying on the "Mop Tete Rouge" during numerous pre-invasion bombing attacks on Nazi military and industrial targets.

Participating in many of the Eighth A. A. F. aerial assaults on German aircraft factories, railroad yards and airfields, as part of the bombardment offensive that softened up Nazi-held Europe for the invading ground forces, Sgt. Hutchinson has flown six times to targets at Berlin, took part in one of the longest of the Eighth Air Force's wide ranging operations, an attack on an aircraft plant at Posen in Poland, and knocked down a Focke-Wulf fighter plane with his twin 50 caliber machine guns during one of four missions to strike at targets in Brunswick, central German industrial city.

Twice "Mop Tete Rouge" has returned to its base at low altitude, alone and unprotected, after being forced to leave its formation—once because of flak damage and again because of enemy fighter attack.

"Funny thing about that," said Sgt. Hutchinson, "Each time it was our number three engine that was hit."

In addition to the recently conferred DFC, the Bristol gunner holds the Air Medal and four Oak Leaf Clusters to that award, all previously given for "meritorious achievement as a Fortress crewman."

The quota for Bristol and Bensalem in the drive was $1,468,938, and this figure was topped by the wide margin of $252,388.

"Chairmen and their captains have worked very hard, but not in vain," stated Mrs. Killoyne, who adds that reports from banks, post

Sunday Wedding Occurs At Tullytown Chapel

TULLYTOWN, July 10—A pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday morning at 9.30, in the Sacred Heart Chapel here, when Miss Mary D. Luciano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Luciano, became the bride of Cpl. Fred J. Cicconi, Jr., Camp MacCain, Miss. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Cicconi, Sr., reside at Mt. Carmel. The Rev. John DiMatteo officiated at the double ring ceremony. Sister Clara played several selections on the organ, and Miss Helen Amatto, Trenton, N. J., sang "Ave Maria." The chapel choir sang the mass.

The bride chose as her maid of honor Miss Josephine Magro, and the bride's niece, Rose Marie Cuttone, Bristol, served as junior bridesmaid. The bride wore a white brocade mousseline de soie gown, with a V-neck, long sleeves, fitted bodice, and Colonial style skirt. Her tiara was of orange blossoms, and she wore a long veil. Her bouquet for the recessional consisted of gardenias, baby breath and a white orchid. She carried to the altar a white prayer book topped by a gardenia.

Miss Magro chose a gown of pink mousseline de soie, with a V-neck, three-quarter length sleeves, fitted bodice, and Colonial style skirt. Her headdress consisted of pink feathers and a shoulder-length veil. The junior bridesmaid's dress was of the same style, but of yellow hue. Both attendants carried Colonial bouquets to match their gowns.

Pfc. Michael Pagano, Port Johnson Terminal, Bayonne, N. J., cousin of the bride, served as best man.

A dinner was served to 50 guests at the home of the bride's parents. In the evening 200 attended a reception at the Luciano home. Cpl. and Mrs. Fred J. Cicconi then left to spend several days in New York City. The bride wore a light blue bengaline suit, white accessories, and an orchid corsage.

The bride gave her attendants stone-set bracelets, and the groom presented his best man with a wallet.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

FORT MYERS, Fla., July 10—Cpl. Emil K. Lucas, son to Mrs. Genevieve Lucas, 586A Route No. 1, Bristol, Pa., who was graduated this week from the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery School at Fort Myers, Fla., will be retained as an instructor at the school.

He was selected because of his high standing in the class and his natural qualities of leadership which were observed by the officers here during the course on instruction. He will now join one of the squadrons here as an instructor on one of the many ranges in this school.

The other members of his class will leave Buckingham for operational training units where they will form crews before going overseas. The instructors will stay behind to produce more gunners, but, after serving several months as instructors, they will get a chance for assignment to a combat theater. With months of valuable training behind them, these instructors who go to combat will have had the very best training for action against the enemy.

He entered the Army in May of last year.

ALLIES Strike at German Bomb Launching Platforms

London—Allied bombers and fighters struck back today at launching platforms of the German deadly flying bombs on the French coast after more of the missiles crashed down during the night on the London area and southern England, causing damage and casualties.

More robots were launched against southern England and the London area today. One flying bomb landed in an area where one of the German prisoner of war camps is situated.

RAF Mosquito bombers blasted a synthetic oil plant at Buer, eight miles northeast of the much-bombed Nazi industrial center of Essen in western Germany and laid mines in enemy waters.

This morning huge Lancaster bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked military objectives in northern France without loss. The German radio reported bombers over East Prussia, but gave no indication of their nationality. Early Nazi stations reported single enemy planes over northwest Germany.

Americans Score Further Gains in Normandy

PAYROLL RISE CONTINUES

All the efforts in and out of Congress to reduce the number of government civilian employees have to date proved unsuccessful.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Expenditures, reports that in the last four months there has been a steady rise in the total. In April alone, among 30 departments and agencies, many not engaged in war work, the net increase in civilian employees was 19,445 for a total of 3,016,897. This is exclusive of 288,563 civilian employees in the War Department stationed outside the continental United States, and 75,000 part-time Department of Agriculture employees.

It was a year ago that Chairman Byrd's committee recommended an immediate reduction of 300,000 in civilian personnel and told how this could be done. Exasperated by the executive branch's failure to do something about it, Senator Byrd gives notice that, when Congress convenes, he will press for legislative action to halt "the appalling waste of manpower in the government service."

There is waste, a great deal of waste, but that Senator Byrd will get very far before the election is doubtful. Even Congress, which had an opportunity to do something about it in June, voted most departments more money than they had in the last fiscal year.

But Senator Byrd, who talks and acts for America, knowing only too well how unpopular it makes him with jobholders who wield no small influence, is to be commended for persistence in a needed effort. The fact that the support he receives in Congress is so meager is a circumstance that stinks.

NEW WEAPONS

Having excellent weapons in all categories and plenty of them, America does not need to boast about a "secret" weapon as the Germans are boasting about their rocket bomb. But America has new weapons and is using them both in Europe and in the Pacific.

One such weapon is an incendiary bomb which scatters sticky gobs of burning gasoline jelly on enemy targets. Packed in a piece of pipe, this flaming jelly scatters 300 feet in all directions, setting fire to anything inflammable it may hit.

It is much more efficient than the German magnesium bomb. Released in clusters of up to 60, it is a terror in Axis countries. When bombing of Japanese cities finally gets under way, the Japs will have a hard time combating it.

America also has a new flame-thrower, now in use, which can lay an effective fire on targets 180 feet distant. It has been under development for many months and replaces equipment effective up to 60 feet. It can "shoot around a corner" by attacking an enemy pillbox angularly, bouncing the burning mass into the pillbox and destroying everything in it.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol May 31, 1883. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

General W. W. H. Davis on the 25th instant completed the 25th year of his editorship and proprietorship of the Doylestown Democrat. . . .

Miss Sue Gillam, of Langhorne, has accepted a position in the faculty of Swarthmore College, as teacher of mathematics. She will enter upon her duties in the fall.

Fifteen bicyclists, from Philadelphia, rolled through Bristol on Saturday on their way to join the meet at New York.

The Delaware River Steamboat Company has purchased grounds at Beverly to be used for Sunday School picnics.

The members of Post 73, G. A. R., were kept busy yesterday in the observance of Decoration Day, they looking after and caring for the graves of about 225 of their fallen comrades that lie buried in the four burial grounds of Bristol, the National Cemetery at China Hall, and the burial grounds at Tullytown and Morrisville. . . .

In Bristol, the day was generally observed. In the afternoon the mills shut down, many of the business places were closed, as were also the post-office and the bank. At two o'clock the post of the Grand Army marched to their hall on Otter street to the Methodist burying ground, preceded by the Washington Cornet band. . . . A large number of people were present at each of the places of interest. . . .

Mr. Samuel Head and crew on the new construction work at Bristol, have again been removed to similar work at Newark, N. J.

The work on the new bridges of the company are still progressing rapidly, a portion of two of the arches over Otter creek has already been finished, and the laying of tracks across this new structure may be looked for in the course of a very short time.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Dove picked up the gun. "What were you doing with it?" he asked. "It's Father's. I found it in the desk drawer. I picked it up to see if it was loaded."

"They always are," Dove commented, then, catching sight of Colin, he made a quick, involuntary movement that was checked almost before it had begun. "This young lady has just been adding to our gray hairs," he said. "You heard the shot?"

"Yes—and Blair's scream. I came running."

"Here's where the bullet went out," said Benedict, pointing at a hole below the window sill, but Dove did not even trouble to look. His pale gray eyes were still on Colin. Soon he turned to Blair, and his eyes were friendly and solicitous. "Feeling better?" he asked.

"I'm feeling feeble-minded for being so clumsy. What I need is a walk." She looked at Colin. "Let's go beg a cup of tea from Ma Corrigale before I get into more trouble."

And not until they were well out of sight and earshot did either of them speak. As they rounded the first turn of the trail Colin drew her arm through his, saying, "Thanks. I won't ever forget that it's due to you I'm still in one piece."

Blair's face had not quite regained its color. "I heard them come in and run up to the attic. I was never so frightened in my life. Then I thought of that gun."

"It was a tight spot. Only your quick thinking kept it from being tighter."

"But what did you find?"

Colin's eyes began glowing. "Blair, that room is jammed with stuff. Most of it's packed in crates. I hadn't time to open anything, but one thing I know. Dove has a short-wave radio up there, ten times as powerful as the one at the Post."

"A radio! That means—" She stopped.

He looked at her with serious eyes. "A set as strong as that could reach a long way. My guess is that the gentle Jonathan Dove is a German spy, and from his maps, I'd say that he is more interested in the United States than he is in Canada."

"But shouldn't we tell the mounted police?"

"Not yet," Colin's voice was decisive. "The possession of a radio set isn't a crime, and Dove would be ready with some explanation. I've had one experience testifying against him without enough proof."

He tried it again, everyone would say I was persecuting him because he's a competitor of the Company. No, this time I've got to know. Even if it takes weeks, I've got to be sure he can't squirm out."

"But Father—" Blair's hand tightened on his arm. "Colin, what's Father doing in all this? He's not a spy—I know he isn't."

Gently Colin answered, "We'll have to face the fact that your father is tied up with Dove. How we don't know; and before we can ticket agent and operator on the Manhattan Elevated Railroad, New York, and who recently accepted the position of night operator at South Bristol, has with his mother removed from the above city to Washington street, near Wood, this borough. . . .

(Following items culled from Bucks County Gazette, issue of June 7, 1883.)

Another new beneficial order has been started in Bristol. It is called the Knights of Friendship. Last night about 40 visiting members came up from Philadelphia on the tug-boat "Simpson," and were accompanied by a life and drum corps. They were met at the wharf by the members here, and accompanied by the Washington Cornet Band, paraded the principal streets of the borough, after which they adjourned to their quarters in Mohican Hall and partook of a supper. . . .

On last Tuesday evening the school board met and organized by the election of James M. Slack as president; Wilson Randall, secretary; and Henry A. Bailey, treasurer. The tax rate was fixed at $1 on the $109. Charles S. Bailey, Esq., was reappointed tax collector.

The annual congregational meeting of the Presbyterian Church of Bristol was held on Monday evening. James M. Slack, John Hope, Charles W. Pearce, Henry M. Wright, Alexander Ralph, William H. Booz and James Warden were re-elected as members of the board of trustees.

The county treasurer will receive the taxes of 1st ward residents today at Silbert's Hotel. Tomorrow he will be at Joseph S. Pearce's office, and on Saturday at the Clouson House.

The new road scraper purchased by the borough authorities has arrived. It cost $60.

Large quantities of freight come to Bristol by the boats.

The work at Doylestown's water works is nearing completion. Water will be turned into the new mains inside of three weeks.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

with a list of four "specific and fundamental" Wilkie grievances against the Republican party, which it was declared it would be necessary for Mr. Dewey to clear up before he can hope for Wilkie support.

THESE INCLUDE, of course, the foreign policy and post-war trade planks, concerning which one gathers Mr. Wilkie used the word "monstrous," but also are included the wage and tax planks, and finally the Negro plank. Aside from the fact that Mr. Dewey already has clarified and interpreted in a forthright way the first two planks, it does seem as if it requires considerable straining for Mr. Wilkie to find fault with the Negro plank, which is certainly stronger and more specific than the plank on which he, himself, ran in 1940. Also, it would appear fairer for Mr. Wilkie to wait until he sees whether the Democrats go even as far as the Republicans in promising what he thinks should be promised to the Negroes.

HOWEVER, aside from that, it seems Mr. Wilkie wants Mr. Dewey to "renounce" the support of what-ever isolationists are now supporting him. Of course, this is slightly ridiculous. It ignores the fact that long before his nomination Mr. Dewey "renounced"—or rather denounced—the support of the noisiest isolationist in the country who claims the largest following—Gerald H. K. Smith. It ignores the fact that Mr. Dewey has come out as strongly against isolationism as Mr. Wilkie. It ignores the fact that the foreign-policy plank has been interpreted by Mr. Dewey in terms of the Mackinac declaration, from which Mr. Wilkie did not dissent. It ignores Mr. Dewey's pre-convention speeches. It ignores so much, in fact, that there seems no sense at all in the call upon Mr. Dewey to "renounce" individuals. Certainly, there is no more sense in that than to call on Mr. Roosevelt to "renounce" Mr. Earl Browder, the Communist leader, original sponsor of the fourth term and one of his most conspicuous supporters. Or, he might as well be asked to "renounce" the Communistic Mr. Hillman, who is running his campaign for the CIO and is the boss of the Communistic American Labor party.

YET, on top of all this, Mr. Wilkie's journalistic friend, fresh from a long talk with him, says that "it can be stated without reservation" that Mr. Wilkie would like to support the Dewey-Briker ticket "because he knows if he bolts this time there is nowhere to go." It isn't exactly easy to take this seriously when linked with Mr. Wilkie's "conditions" and conversation, but it does not sound much like principles. An effort to explain is made by saying that his choice now is between support of Dewey or "taking a walk," but that there is no chance that he will support Mr. Roosevelt, whose retirement he has publicly insisted is a vital need of the nation.

THE TRUTH is that this whole Wilkie business is fast reaching a pathetic stage. Unable to make a clear-cut case by which he can bolt the party as a matter of "conscience" or "principle" and yet unable to support the other ticket because of his aversion to the New Deal, Mr. Wilkie has let go past the time when he can give sufficiently effective support to his own party to make anyone very grateful. And he is fast approaching the time when what he does will not make a great deal of difference anyhow. Up to date his carping comments and aloof attitude have done about all the damage he could. To "take a walk" now won't add to it much. In effect, he already has walked. Incidentally, Mr. Wilkie let it be known through his journalistic confidant that he does not think the rules of good sportsmanship apply to his situation. He need not worry. No one would suspect him of thinking so.

PLYMOUTH — (INS) — One of those things that make life worth living happened to Mr. and Mrs. William Bolen whose young son had been reported missing in action while on a mission over Austria. They were at a Harveys Lake cottage when Staff Sgt. Merle Bolen walked in wearing rows of medals including the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Service Cross.

Miss Elizabeth T. Beswick Is Wed To PFC Frank Bowers

A wedding of interest in Bristol during the week-end was that of Miss Elizabeth T. Beswick, of 352 Jackson street, and PFC Frank T. Bowers, Trenton, N. J., who is stationed at Camp Pickett, Va.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. John Baker, Sr., of Jackson street, was attended by three young women, two of them being sisters of the groom. The three included: Miss Ruth Bowers, Trenton, N. J., as maid of honor; Miss Elva Bowers, Trenton, and Miss Evelyn DenBleyker, McKinley street, bridesmaids.

PFC Bowers was attended by Mr. Elwood Dyer, Washington street, as best man; the ushers including Mr. Victor Topham, Newark, N. J., and Mr. Frank Kolk, Trenton, N. J.

Mr. John Baker, Sr., escorted the former Miss Beswick to the altar of Calvary Baptist Church at the hour of four on Saturday afternoon, with the Rev. Lehman Strauss, pastor, performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride, a member of the faculty of Coatesville high school, where she teaches commercial subjects, was attractively gowned in white chiffon, with lace trimming the sweetheart neckline and used as inserts on the train. Sleeves were long. Her fingertip veil of net, lace trimmed, was attached to a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

The trio of attendants of the bride wore pastel toned costumes, the brides being of taffeta, and the floor-length skirts of net. The short-sleeved gowns had sweetheart necklines, and small flowers were used as trim at the hip-lines. The maid of honor wore green; Miss Elva Bowers, peach; and Miss DenBleyker, selected orchid. Their net head-pieces and shoulder-length veils blended with the individual costumes. Ribbons on the arm bouquets of mixed flowers matched the respective gowns.

The bridal marches were played by Miss Vera Tomlinson, Walnut street, who also served as accompanist for Mrs. Edward Clark, Cornwells Heights, Mrs. Clark sang "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly" and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Mrs. Baker, mother of the bride, was attired in a dress of cream crepe, and wore white accessories. The dress chosen by Mrs. Bowers, mother of the groom, was of green net, and her accessories of white. The two wore corsages of pink rosebuds.

A collation was served to 40 guests at a reception in I. O. O. F. hall. Later the young soldier and his bride left for a few days stay at Ocean Grove, N. J.

Mrs. Bowers presented her attendants with wallets, and the groom gave key cases to the best man and ushers. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowers, of Trenton.

BRITISH AND CANADIAN FORCES COMPLETE CONQUEST OF THE VITAL RAIL HUB OF CAEN

Strike Southward Across Odon River and Drive Germans Back Along the Orne — British Wedge Becomes Broad Battering Ram.

By International News Service
Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, July 10.—British and Canadian armored and infantry forces, having virtually completed the conquest of the vital rail hub and river port of Caen, struck southward across the Odon River today and drove the Germans back to a line along the Orne.

Battlefront dispatches said the attack was launched at 7.30 a. m. (1.30 a. m., E. W. T.) and initial objectives were quickly reached.

At 11 a. m. (5 a. m., E. W. T.) the new attack was reported to be "going well."

A British wedge aimed southeast of the Caen sector has now become a "broad battering ram," these dispatches said. Other British forces are pushing south and west of the rubble-strewn city.

All resistance in a village north of Caen has been wiped out, according to these reports, and another projected counter-attack in the Grainville sector has been broken up.

Several hundred prisoners were reported taken in the new push beyond Caen, but German resistance south of the Orne remains very strong.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that rocket-firing Typhoons have started a series of spectacular attacks which brought ground support technique to a new degree of efficiency.

They swept in only 10 feet above the heads of cheering British and Canadian troops driving into Caen to send their rockets hissing into German gun emplacements a bare 50 yards ahead of the advancing troops.

Bride and Five Attendants Are Costumed in White

With the bride and her quintet of attendants gowned entirely in white, with the light of the altar candles causing the scattered silver sequins on the costumes to glisten, the Favata-Galizia wedding yesterday morning attracted a large company in St. Ann's R. C. Church.

The bride is Miss Antoinette Marie Galizia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo Galizia, of 426 Logan street, she becoming the wife of Mr. Louis Russell Favata, Trenton, N. J. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Peter Pinci, the former Miss Galizia's father giving her in marriage, at the 11 o'clock mass.

Miss Frances Tamburella, organist, provided the accompaniment for the church choir, and also played the bridal marches.

The bride wore a gown of white illusion net with mushroom train. The gown featured an illusion neck-line with an off-the-shoulder effect, short puffed sleeves, and full peplum. Dashes of silver sequins were scattered over the billowy folds of the gown. An illusion veil, 20 yards long, was held in place by clusters of flowers on either side of her head. The veil was edged with French lace, this matching the three-quarter length French lace gloves. Her bouquet was composed of white orchids.

Miss Ann Galizia, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor; and the bridesmaids were inclusive of: the Misses Jeanne Indelicato, Clara Carbellini, Jennie DiBlassio, and Micheline Galizia, the latter also a sister of the bride. These young women wore gowns of white illusion net, patterned like that of the bride, but being minus trains. On their white net gloves appeared silver sequins; and their white net hats were shaped to resemble flowers, they having sequin trim. Cascade bouquets of white roses and gardenias, with an orchid in the center of each, were carried by the attendants.

Mr. Frank S. Sperazza, Trenton, N. J., a nephew of the groom, was best man for the occasion; and ushers included Messrs. Frank M. Sperazza, Trenton, N. J., and nephew of the groom; Nicholas Galizia, brother of the bride.

Members of the bridal party were entertained at dinner in Trenton, N. J., immediately following the ceremony, and last evening a large company attended a reception in Mutual Aid Hall. Upon their return from a honeymoon, Mr. Favata and bride will reside at 941 W. State street, Trenton, N. J.

SPECIAL POLICE, WHO SERVE BRISTOL WITHOUT RECOMPENSE, SPEND NUMEROUS HOURS ON DUTY; LIVES RULED TO EXTENT BY BELLS AND SIRENS

It's bells and sirens for the special police of Bristol, for it seems that their lives are now ruled by such.

They must listen to the fire alarms, for they go on duty whenever there is a second alarm. They must keep their ears attuned to air raid signals or air raid tests, for that means additional periods of service. And when their telephones ring there might be involved calls for special police duty at almost any spot in Bristol.

The special police of Bristol, who perfected an organization about a year ago, have gratuitously put in many profitable hours—hours of service which benefit every resident of Bristol. The special police organization is an outgrowth of the original emergency police, which latter group came into being when there was a need for protection from possible air raids. The majority of the 16 who are now sworn in as special borough policemen, were former zone chiefs in the emergency police set-up.

The organization was perfected

through the assistance of Chief of Police Linford J. Jones and Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo. The 16 men sworn in as special borough police, have the full authority of regular police officers. They followed an intensive eight-week course of law enforcement and self-protection at the municipal building. The instructors were Mr. Russo, a fingerprint expert from Philadelphia; and Major Martin, of the Hershey School for Pennsylvania State Police, and Chief Jones.

Such a keen interest have the men taken in their work that the greater number of them purchased their own revolvers, which entailed considerable outlay of money. Money for uniforms and other equipment was raised through various types of benefits conducted by the men, and they worked for all that they have. They each have a policeman's uniform, similar to those of other Bristol police officers, identification card, night stick, blackjack, flashlight and revolver.

Serving without any recompense whatever, they are on call at all times of the day and night, and many a night they have literally served as "watchmen" when long hours of service were required at certain points in efforts to trap would-be thieves. Frequently on such occasions they serve in relays of two, three or four hours. Sometimes their duties call for plain clothes.

But with their police uniforms it is not necessary for the men to choose between two uniforms, depending on the occasion, for if an air raid test sounds they quickly don the police uniforms, as more authority is thus vested and they can be of greater aid to the townspeople. Thus Bristol's regular police force is augmented and the town well "covered."

J. S. Lynn, Mill street jeweler, is captain of the special police; with Arthur Pilla as sergeant; and Vernon Werline and August Arnold as corporals. Other members are: John H. Brehm, George R. Rittler, Samuel Friedman, John Ennis, Jr., Edmund N. Sampson, Jr., Fred H. Leckhardt, James Unruh, Arthur Seyfert, Sidney W. Popkin, Edward Sparring, Marvin Collins and Edwin Harker. During air raid tests the men take over their usual posts as zone chiefs, etc.

Frequently Chief Jones, when needing additional officers, calls Mr. Lynn, requesting services of a half dozen or dozen men.

The special police, before their present organization, aided as emergency police at fires at the Hunter Manufacturing Corp. and

CARVERSVILLE MAN IS HELD IN ATTACK

Vincent J. Radosin, 30, In County Jail Under $5,000 Bail

LITTLE GIRL INVOLVED

DOYLESTOWN, July 10.—A red baseball cap and greasy trousers, a pink blanket and a grey automobile, plus clever police investigation led to the arrest at the end of the week of a sex fiend who has confessed to a criminal assault on a nine-year-old Doylestown girl, on the afternoon of June 28, as she was returning home from the local swimming pool.

The accused is Vincent J. Radosin, 30, a farm machinery mechanic, living in Carversville. His draft status is "2-A" which means that he is "important to the community because of his special type of work"—repairing farm machinery. He's married to a former Doylestown girl, but they have no children.

Radosin, who has been in the county jail since he signed a confession, was held under $5,000 bail after he waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace William Wrigley, Edison. He is charged with rape, assault and battery with intent to commit rape.

County Detective William L. Stackhouse, prosecutor in the case, and Officer C. Clifford Beck, of Doylestown police, assisted by Trooper J. J. Shovelin, of the state police, have been working continuously on the case since the crime was reported shortly after it occurred.

After signing the confession, Radosin took the police over the entire route he traveled on the afternoon of June 28, when he picked up the nine-year-old girl. He explained everything in detail, with the exception that he denied the actual assault. Police say that physicians, however, examined the child, and found that an assault had been made.

Radosin related to the police how he had some farm work in Doylestown township on the afternoon of June 28, and drove to Doylestown. About 2.30 p. m. he said he was driving on Spruce street when he stopped his car and asked the little girl if

Cornwells Heights Woman Dies in Phila. Hospital

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, July 10.—Mrs. Emma H. Grahl, who had been a patient in Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, for the past two weeks, died in that institution yesterday morning. She was 61 years of age.

Mrs. Grahl is survived by her husband, Franz Grahl, and a daughter, both of Cornwells Heights.

The funeral and interment will be at the convenience of the family, with Harold H. Haefner, funeral director, in charge.

TO HEAR MISSIONARY

The July meeting of the Men's Christian Fellowship League of Lower Bucks County will be held this evening in Newtown Methodist Church, Newtown. The speaker will be the Rev. William Boyer, recently returned from the Belgian Congo. All men are invited to attend. Following the meeting, refreshments will be served.

BURNED ON LIMBS

Edward Steel, Bath and Rogers Roads, suffered burns of the right arm and right leg while using a gasoline torch at his home on Saturday. He was treated at Harriman Hospital.

Urges Car Owners Not To Delay Car Inspection

Motor vehicle inspection has become a patriotic duty in the wartime transportation emergency. Secretary of Revenue David W. Harris declared today in a statement urging car owners not to delay in having their vehicles inspected in the current inspection period which ends July 31st.

"Today, more than ever," Secretary Harris said, "motor vehicle inspection is important because it has become a wartime conservation measure. There must be no breakdown of the nation's transportation system in this critical period. Every car that is kept rolling on the home front means that much more help for those who are courageously fighting for us on the battle fronts. A broken down car won't carry workers to a munitions plant or a tank factory and still worse it may be responsible for an accident which might result in valuable workers never returning to the job of turning out the tools of war so badly needed today."

"It is the patriotic duty of the motor vehicle owner today to see to it that his car is fit and can be safely driven. Official inspection will determine that. If your car has not been inspected in this current inspection period which ends July 31st, have it done today. It cannot be legally operated after July 31st without a current inspection 'sticker' on the windshield. There can be no extension of the period."

DFC IS AWARDED TO SGT. C. HUTCHINSON

IN MANY ASSAULTS

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England, July 10.—The Distinguished Flying Cross has been awarded to Tech. Sgt. Calvin C. Hutchinson, 29, top turret gunner on a B-17 Flying Fortress, son of Mr. and Mrs. David C. Hutchinson, of Pine street, and whose wife, Mrs. Dorothy Hutchinson, lives on Route 1, Bristol.

The award was made for courage, skill and "extraordinary achievement" while flying on the Fort "Mon Tete Rouge" during numerous pre-invasion bombing attacks on Nazi military and industrial targets.

Participating in many of the Eighth A. A. F. aerial assaults on German aircraft factories, railroad yards and airfields, as part of the bombardment offensive that softened up Nazi-held Europe for the invading ground forces, Sgt. Hutchinson has flown six times to targets at Berlin, took part in one of the longest of the Eighth Air Force's wide ranging operations, an attack on an aircraft plant at Posen in Poland, and knocked down a Focke-Wulf fighter plane with his twin 50 caliber machine guns during one of four missions to strike at targets in Brunswick, central German industrial city.

Twice "Mon Tete Rouge" has returned to its base at low altitude, alone and unprotected, after being forced to leave its formation—once because of flak damage and again because of enemy fighter action.

"Funny thing about that," said Sgt. Hutchinson, "Each time it was our number three engine that was 'hit'."

In addition to the recently conferred DFC, the Bristol gunner holds the Air Medal and four Oak Leaf Clusters to that award, all previously given for "meritorious achievement as a Fortress crewman."

Allies Strike at German Bomb Launching Platforms

London—Allied bombers and fighters struck back today at launching platforms of the German deadly flying bombs on the French channel coast after more of the missiles crashed down during the night on the London area and southern England, causing damage and casualties.

More robots were launched against southern England and the London area today. One flying bomb landed in an area where one of the German prisoner of war camps is situated.

RAF Mosquito bombers blasted a synthetic oil plant at Buer, eight miles northeast of the much-bombed Nazi industrial center of Essen in western Germany and laid mines in enemy waters.

This morning huge Lancaster bombers, escorted by fighters, attacked military objectives in northern France without loss. The German radio reported bombers over East Prussia, but gave no indication of their nationality. Early Nazi stations reported single enemy planes over northwest Germany.

Americans Score Further Gains in Normandy

With the First U. S. Army in Normandy—American infantry, armored and mechanized cavalry units scored further gains today and are maintaining their progress despite unfavorable weather. Armored forces pushing southwest in the area west of the Vire River have now reached a sector a mile north of Point Hebert.

Nazi Baltic Communications Network Endangered

Moscow—The main Nazi communications network linking defense bastions through the Baltics was endangered today by onrushing Soviet legions which swept forward along a broad front in pursuit of German troops retreating along their tottering railroad lines.

In their drive, the Reds reached the Latvian border of Druga, occupied the Polish rail hub of Lida, controlling lines to both Riga and Warsaw and fought street battles in the streets of Wilno, 56 miles to the north of Lida.

Sunday Wedding Occurs At Tullytown Chapel

TULLYTOWN, July 10.—A pretty wedding was solemnized Sunday morning at 9.30, in the Sacred Heart Chapel, here, when Miss Mary D. Luciano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Luciano, became the bride of Cpl. Fred J. Cicconi, Jr., Camp MacCain, Miss. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Cicconi, Sr., reside at Mt. Carmel. The Rev. John DiMatteo officiated at the double ring ceremony. Sister Clara played several selections on the organ, and Miss Helen Amato, Trenton, N. J., sang "Ave Maria." The chapel choir sang the mass.

The bride chose as her maid of honor Miss Josephine Magro, and the bride's niece, Rose Marie Cuttone, Bristol, served as junior bridesmaid. The bride wore a white broadened mouseline de soie gown, with a V-neck, long sleeves, fitted bodice, and Colonial style skirt. Her tiara was of orange blossoms, and she wore a long veil. Her bouquet for the recessional consisted of gardenias, baby breath and a white orchid. She carried to the altar a white prayer book topped by a gardenia.

Miss Magro chose a gown of pink mouseline de soie, with a V-neck, three-quarter length sleeves, fitted bodice, and Colonial style skirt. Her headdress consisted of pink feathers and a shoulder-length veil. The junior bridesmaid's dress was of the same style, but of yellow hue. Both attendants carried Colonial bouquets to match their gowns.

Pic. Michael Pagano, Port Johnson Terminal, Bayonne, N. J., cousin of the bride, served as best man.

A dinner was served to 50 guests at the home of the bride's parents. In the evening 200 attended a reception at the Luciano home. Cpl. and Mrs. Fred J. Cicconi then left to spend several days in New York City. The bride wore a light blue bengaline suit, white accessories, and an orchid corsage.

The bride gave her attendants stone-set bracelets, and the groom presented his best man with a wallet.

Reading Train Kills Man Asleep on Rails

Joseph Koten, 37, Quakertown R. D. 3, died in Quakertown Community Hospital late Saturday night after being run over by a Reading Company train south of Quakertown Saturday morning.

State police said Koten apparently fell asleep on the tracks and was not discovered until a track-walker passed by several hours later.

Rev. Boyer Speaks At Church in Hulmeville

HULMEVILLE, July 10.—The Rev. William Boyer, missionary to the Belgian Congo, Africa, was the speaker in Neshamny Methodist Church, yesterday morning.

Taking as his text the verse "I will make the place of my feet glorious," the missionary, now on furlough, enlarged on this promise to Christians from God which has proved true down through the ages.

He told of some specific phases of work in the Congo, and of the superstitions and beliefs of the natives until they accept Christ. It was mentioned that the natives live in constant fear of the "spirits," which they think inhabit the water, the air, etc., believing they are evil spirits until taught differently. How vital contact with God changes their lives, and how they become in reality missionaries in their own communities, telling their relatives and friends the good news, was told by the speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Boyer told of how a fine brick church, with a capacity of 500, was erected in the Congo by the natives. The women chopped the wood to burn the bricks, then they and the men tramped the day. The men gave generously of their hard-earned money to secure material for the roof, the windows, and their parts. "God even makes work glorious when the principles of God motivate the work," commented the clergyman. "When we put God first there will be glory in our lives."

FORT MYERS, Fla., July 10.—Cpl. Emil K. Lucas, son of Mrs. Genevieve Lucas, 586A Route No. 1, Bristol, Pa., who was graduated this week from the Army Air Forces Flexible Gunnery School at Fort Myers, Fla., will be retained as an instructor at the school.

He was selected because of his high standing in the class and his natural qualities of leadership which were observed by the officers here during the course of instruction. He will now join one of the squadrons here as an instructor on one of the many ranges in this school.

The other members of his class will leave Buckingham for operational training units where they will form crews before going overseas. The instructors will stay behind to produce more gunners, but, after serving several months as instructors, they will get a chance for assignment to a combat theater. With months of valuable training behind them, these instructors who go to combat will have had the very best training for action against the enemy.

He entered the Army in May of last year.

FAYROLL RISE CONTINUES

All the efforts in and out of Congress to reduce the number of government civilian employees have to date proved unsuccessful.

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Reduction of Non-essential Expenditures, reports that in the last four months there has been a steady rise in the total. In April alone, among 30 departments and agencies, many not engaged in war work, the net increase in civilian employees was 19,445 for a total of 3,016,897. This is exclusive of 288,563 civilian employees in the War Department stationed outside the continental United States, and 75,000 part-time Department of Agriculture employees.

It was a year ago that Chairman Byrd's committee recommended an immediate reduction of 300,000 in civilian personnel and told how this could be done. Exasperated by the executive branch's failure to do something about it, Senator Byrd gives notice that, when Congress convenes, he will press for legislative action to halt "the appalling waste of manpower in the government service."

There is waste, a great deal of waste, but that Senator Byrd will get very far before the election is doubtful. Even Congress, which had an opportunity to do something about it in June, voted most departments more money than they had in the last fiscal year.

But Senator Byrd, who talks and acts for America, knowing only too well how unpopular it makes him with jobholders who wield no small influence, is to be commended for persistence in a needed effort. The fact that the support he receives in Congress is so meager is a circumstance that stinks.

NEW WEAPONS

Having excellent weapons in all categories and plenty of them, America does not need to boast about a "secret" weapon as the Germans are boasting about their rocket bomb. But America has new weapons and is using them both in Europe and in the Pacific.

One such weapon is an incendiary bomb which scatters sticky globes of burning gasoline jelly on enemy targets. Packed in a piece of pipe, this flaming jelly scatters 300 feet in all directions, setting fire to anything inflammable it may hit.

It is much more efficient than the German magnesium bomb. Released in clusters of up to 60, it is a terror in Axis countries. When bombing of Japanese cities finally gets under way, the Japs will have a hard time combating it.

America also has a new flame thrower, now in use, which can lay an effective fire on targets 180 feet distant. It has been under development for many months and replaces equipment effective up to 60 feet. It can "shoot around a corner" by attacking an enemy pillbox angularly, bombing the burning mass into the pillbox and destroying everything in it.

Try the poor grocer who memorizes one table of points only to have it replaced by another.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issues dated at Bristol May 31, 1883. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

General W. W. H. Davis on the 25th instant completed the 25th year of his editorship and proprietorship of the Doylestown Democrat. . .

Miss Sue Gilliam, of Langhorne, has accepted a position in the faculty of Swarthmore College, as teacher of mathematics. She will enter upon her duties in the fall.

Fifteen bicyclists, from Philadelphia, rolled through Bristol on Saturday on their way to join the meet at New York.

The Delaware River Steamboat Company has purchased grounds at Beverly to be used for Sunday School picnics.

The members of Post 73, G. A. R., were kept busy yesterday in the observance of Decoration Day, they looking after and caring for the graves of about 225 of their fallen comrades that lie buried in the four burial grounds of Bristol, the National Cemetery at China Hall, and the burial grounds at Tullytown and Morrisville. . .

In Bristol, the day was generally observed. In the afternoon the mills shut down, many of the business places were closed, as were also the post-office and the bank. At two o'clock the post of the Grand Army marched to their hall on Otter street to the Methodist burying ground, preceded by the Washington Cornet band. . . A large number of people were present at each of the places of interest. . .

Mr. Samuel Head and crew on the new construction work at Bristol, have again been removed to similar work at Newark, N. J.

The work on the new bridges of the company are still progressing rapidly, a portion of two of the arches over Otter creek has already been finished, and the laying of tracks across this new structure may be looked for in the course of a very short time.

Mr. Charles Parker, formerly a ticket agent, and operator on the Manhattan Elevated Railroad, New York, and who recently accepted the position of night operator at South Bristol, has with his mother removed from the above city to Washington street, near Wood, this borough. . .

(Following items called from Bucks County Gazette, issue of June 7, 1883.)

Another new beneficial order has been started in Bristol. It is called the Knights of Friendship. Last night about 40 visiting members came up from Philadelphia on the tug-boat "Simpson," and were accompanied by a file and drum corps. They were met at the wharf by the members here, and accompanied by the Washington Cornet Band, paraded the principal streets of the borough, after which they adjourned to their quarters in Mohican Hall and partook of a supper. . .

On last Tuesday evening the school board met and organized by the election of James M. Slack as president; Wilson Randall, secretary; and Henry A. Bailey, treasurer. The tax rate was fixed at $1 on the $109, Charles S. Bailey, Esq., was reappointed tax collector.

The annual congregational meeting of the Presbyterian Church of Bristol was held on Monday evening, James M. Slack, John Hope, Charles W. Peirce, Henry M. Wright, Alexander Ralph, William H. Booz and James Warden were re-elected as members of the board of trustees.

The county treasurer will receive the taxes of 1st ward residents today at Silbert's Hotel. Tomorrow he will be at Joseph S. Peirce's office, and on Saturday at the Clifton House.

The new road scraper purchased by the borough authorities has arrived. It cost $60.

Large quantities of freight come to Bristol by the boats.

The work at Doylestown's water works is nearing completion. Water will be turned into the new mains inside of three weeks.

THE GREAT GAME

OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

with a list of four "specific and fundamental" Wilkie grievances against the Republican party, which it was declared it would be necessary for Mr. Dewey to clear up before he can hope for Wilkie support.

THESE INCLUDE, of course, the foreign policy and post-war trade planks, concerning which one gathers Mr. Wilkie used the word "monstrous," but also are included the wage and tax planks, and finally the Negro plank. Aside from the fact that Mr. Dewey already has clarified and interpreted in a forthright way the first two planks, it does seem as if it requires considerable straining for Mr. Wilkie to find fault with the Negro plank, which is certainly stronger and more specific than the plank on which he, himself, ran in 1910. Also, it would appear fairer for Mr. Wilkie to wait until he sees whether the Democrats go even as far as the Republicans in promising what he thinks should be promised to the Negroes.

HOWEVER, aside from that, it seems Mr. Wilkie wants Mr. Dewey to "renounce" the support of whatever isolationists are now supporting him. Of course, this is slightly ridiculous. It ignores the fact that long before his nomination Mr. Dewey "renounced" or rather denounced "the support of the noisier isolationist in the country who claims the largest following—Gerald H. K. Smith. It ignores the fact that Mr. Dewey has come out as strongly against isolationism as Mr. Wilkie. It ignores the fact that the foreign-policy plank has been interpreted by Mr. Dewey in terms of the Mackinac declaration, from which Mr. Wilkie did not dissent. It ignores Mr. Dewey's pre-con-

tion speeches. It ignores so much, in fact, that there seems no sense at all in the call upon Mr. Dewey to "renounce" individuals. Certainly, there is no more sense in that than to call on Mr. Roosevelt to "renounce" Mr. Earl Browder, the Communist leader, original sponsor of the fourth term and one of his most conspicuous supporters. Or, he might as well be asked to "renounce" the Communist Mr. Hillman, who is running his campaign for the CIO and is the boss of the Communist American Labor party. . .

YET, on top of all this, Mr. Wilkie's journalistic friend, fresh from a long talk with him, says that "it can be stated without reservation" that Mr. Wilkie would like to support the Dewey-Bricker ticket "because he knows if he bolts this time there is nowhere to go." It isn't exactly easy to take this seriously when linked with Mr. Wilkie's "conditions" and conversation, but it does not sound much like principles. An effort to explain is made by saying that his choice now is between support of Dewey or "taking a walk," but that there is no chance that he will support Mr. Roosevelt, whose retirement he has publicly insisted is a vital need of the nation. . .

THE TRUTH is that this whole Wilkie business is fast reaching a pathetic stage. Unable to make a clear-cut case by which he can bolt the party as a matter of "conscience" or "principle" and yet unable to support the other ticket because of his aversion to the New Deal, Mr. Wilkie has let go past the time when he can give sufficiently effective support to his own party to make anyone very grateful. And he is fast approaching the time when what he does will not make a great deal of difference anyhow. Up to date his carping comments and aloof attitude have done about all the damage he could. To "take a walk" now won't add of it much. In effect, he already has walked. Incidentally, Mr. Wilkie let it be known through his journalistic confidant that he does not think the rules of good sportsmanship apply to his situation. He need not worry. No one would suspect him of thinking so.

PLYMOUTH — (INS) — One of those things that make life worth living happened to Mr. and Mrs. William Bolen whose young son had been reported missing in action while on a mission over Austria. They were at a Harveys Lake cottage when Staff Sgt. Merle Bolen walked in wearing rows of medals including the Purple Heart and the Distinguished Service Cross.

Miss Elizabeth T. Beswick Is Wed To PFC Frank Bowers

A wedding of interest in Bristol during the week-end was that of Miss Elizabeth T. Beswick, of 352 Jackson street, and PFC Frank T. Bowers, Trenton, N. J., who is stationed at Camp Pickett, Va.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. John Baker, Sr., of Jackson street, was attended by three young women, two of them being sisters of the groom. The three included: Miss Ruth Bowers, Trenton, N. J., as maid of honor; Miss Elva Bowers, Trenton, and Miss Evelyn DenBleyker, McKinley street, bridesmaids.

PFC Bowers was attended by Mr. Elwood Dyer, Washington street, as best man; the ushers including Mr. Victor Topham, Newark, N. J., and Mr. Frank Kolk, Trenton, N. J.

Mr. John Baker, Sr., escorted the former Miss Beswick to the altar of Calvary Baptist Church at the hour of four on Saturday afternoon, with the Rev. Lehman Strauss, pastor, performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride, a member of the faculty of Coatesville high school, where she teaches commercial subjects, was attractively gowned in white chiffon, with lace trimming the sweetheart neckline and used as inserts on the train. Sleeves were long. Her fingertip veil of net, lace trimmed, was attached to a cluster of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

The trio of attendants of the bride wore pastel toned costumes, the bodices being of taffeta, and the floor-length skirts of net. The short-sleeved gowns had sweetheart necklines, and small flowers were used as trim at the hip-lines. The maid of honor wore green; Miss Elva Bowers, peach; and Miss DenBleyker, selected orchid. Their net head-pieces and shoulder-length veils blended with the individual costumes. Ribbons on the arm bouquets of mixed flowers matched the respective gowns.

The bridal marches were played by Miss Vera Tomlinson, Walnut street, who also served as accompanist for Mrs. Edward Clark, Cornwells Heights, Mrs. Clark sang "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly" and "Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

Mrs. Baker, mother of the bride, was attired in a dress of cream crepe, and wore white accessories. The dress chosen by Mrs. Bowers, mother of the groom, was of green net, and her accessories of white. The two wore corsages of pink rose-buds.

A collation was served to 40 guests at a reception in I. O. O. F. hall. Later the young soldier and his bride left for a few days stay at Ocean Grove, N. J.

Mrs. Bowers presented her attendants with wallets, and the groom gave key cases to the best man and ushers. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowers, of Trenton.

Today's Quiet Moment By the Rev. Arthur D. Sargis Pastor Eddington Presbyterian Church Eddington

Dear Father I thank you for your nearness to me. You have never deserted me but I have so often forsaken you. Forgive me for being so blind and so seemingly self-sufficient. Without you I can do nothing that is worthwhile. May I, just now, recall the words of Jesus "without me ye can do nothing." Experience has proven it. May I, this day, travel with Thy Son Who even unto the end of the world," said, "Lo, I am with you always Amen."

Flushing, New York

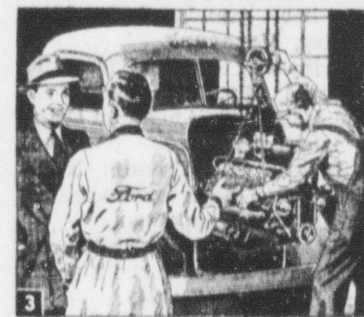

Letters from Ford Truck owners tell how reliable their trucks are on all kinds of jobs—how seldom they need repairs—how little they cost to run and keep up. Limited production of new Ford Trucks has recently been authorized. If your needs are urgent and you can qualify, see your Ford dealer. It will be necessary, of course, to provide ODT certification.

"DELIVERING COMPLETE SETS of lifeboats saves unloading and handling costs. Our Fords truck them into the yards on time, ready to be swung aboard the Victory and Liberty ships."

"NINE-TON LOADS are the average as we rush our lifeboats to the shipyards. Our Ford truck tractors do a great job; miles pile up, but costs stay low."

"A FORD RECONDITIONED ENGINE was installed in one truck in emergency, enabling us to hold to schedules. Such service is a great help. We wouldn't trade our Fords for any other make."

CAUTI ENTERS HALL OF FAME AS HE BLANKS RIVALS

Bristol Aces' Hurler Pitches No-Hit, No-Run Game Against R. & H. IX

FINAL SCORE IS 14 TO 0

Winners Made 14 Hits and Cauti Led Teammates At the Bat

Tony Cauti entered the mythical hall of fame yesterday afternoon as he pitched the Bristol Aces to a no-run, no-hit game against the Rohm and Haas team in a Bristol Youth League contest. Final score was 14-0.

In turning in the no-hit, no-run performance Cauti struck out 17 batters. He was aided by errorless fielding with his mates making several nice stops and catches.

The winners had fourteen hits to their credit. Cauti himself led the hitters with three hits. "Lefty" Fiorelli had a home run with two on base in the sixth and Perrone followed with a triple, also with two on, in the following inning.

Franklin A. C. won its ninth straight game and also the first half championship by defeating Siles, 6-1, on the latter's field. It was no easy triumph for the Franklin boys as the Siles hurler appeared in fine form in striking out eleven of the winners.

FLEETWINGS TO PLAY PRISON OFFICERS NINE

The Fleetwings team will try for its fifth straight game this evening when it plays the Prison Officers on the high school field. Game will begin at 6:15 o'clock.

The Winners will have an opportunity to gain on the league-leading Officers if they can score a triumph tonight. The Arrows are only three games away from first place and a triumph will put them within striking distance of both second and first place.

It is most likely that either Mike DeRisi or Lon Heister will pitch for the Arrows with Burkley pitching for the Guards.

It was announced yesterday that the Case Packers have withdrawn their team from the Trenton Industrial League because of a lack of players.

Special Police Spend Numerous Hours On Duty

Rohm & Haas Co. plants several months ago. Since organization they have served as traffic officers on certain occasions near Bristol high school building, also in the business district of the borough. They gave several hours service at the time of the "I Am An American" Day celebration; the war bond rallies, etc.

The 16, chosen from about 300 emergency policemen, are on call at all times, and thoroughly enjoy their duties, feeling they can be of aid in this manner on the home front.

offices, theatres, and other issuing agents received on Saturday, proved that the people of Bristol area realize the necessity of lending money to the government to protect their girls and boys in the armed forces.

Although the Bristol-Bensalem area has gone over its quota, other zones in Bucks County have not. Mrs. Kilcoyne informs, "So let's continue to buy bonds for the next two weeks to help put Bucks County over the top."

The War at A Glance

the communications center of La Haye du Puits—western anchor of the Nazi cracking defenses.

Allied ground forces kept up steady pressure between the two fallen bastions of Caen and La Haye while Allied airmen smashed at enemy airfields, bridges, rolling stock and motor transport throughout the invasion area.

The British Navy added the thunderous roar of its big guns to the blasting of the heavy bombers of the R. A. F. in the final all-out assault that preceded the capture of Caen.

American troops pushed eastward toward Sainteny and the entire American line is moving slowly but steadily down from the base of the Cherbourg peninsula despite bitter German opposition.

Russian armies smashing through in an unchecked drive along the eastern front held the two-way rail center of Lida and battled fiercely in the streets of Wilno (Vilna).

Soviet forces slashed across the Gavya River and burst into Lida at night to destroy most of the German garrison.

A special order of the day from Marshal Joseph Stalin announced that Lida fell following a "skillful maneuver of cavalry, infantry and tanks."

A Reuters dispatch from Moscow said that the Germans were being driven out of the streets of Wilno by crushing Soviet tank attacks.

Wilno lies astride the main escape route for some 500,000 Nazi troops in Lithuania and Latvia.

American troops hoisted the Stars and Stripes over conquered Saipan Island after three and one-half weeks of the sharpest fighting in the Pacific war. Organized Japanese resistance ended just before dusk yesterday when battle-hardened Marines reached the sea at the northern tip of this strategic island. The major campaign is at an end, although some mopping up remains to be done.

On the Italian front American forces advanced four miles beyond captured Volterra, important communications center, and drove a strategic wedge in the German line between the sea and Poggibonsi, on the main north-south road to Florence.

American infantry units in the coastal sector slashed forward and attacked Pomaja, village astride the north-south road, eight miles inland. On the west coast, where the yanks are less than 10 miles south of Livorno (Leghorn), bitterly-contested advances were measured in yards. The Yanks were near enough to the prized port of Livorno to see great columns of smoke and flame shooting up 100,000 to 150,000 feet from fires presumably caused by the enemy as they destroyed naval stores before the siege for the city begins.

German flying bombs crashed down in London and the southern English counties during the night, causing some damage and casualties.

Strong formations of Allied bombers and fighters resumed their pounding of flying bomb platforms at dawn. Most of the platforms are believed to be situated in the area between Pas de Calais and Boulogne.

her mother was home, and when she said "no," he asked her to jump in, telling her that he would take her home.

Instead of turning in a road that would lead to the child's home, Radosin said he continued on another way, and not far from Doylestown, is where the alleged assault is said to have taken place. He then returned the little girl to within two blocks of her home and let her out.

At home the girl's mother learned what had happened when she noticed that her daughter had been crying. Police were notified at once. From description given the police by the victim—a very good description, coming from a nine-year-old girl who had been terribly frightened—and a search was started immediately of many garages in this section, for a mechanic who might answer the little girl's description.

The red baseball cap, the greasy shirt, grey trousers, and the grey car were mute evidence of guilt when police walked into a machine shop at Cottageville and arrested Radosin on sight. A confidential tip to the police had led them there.

Radosin at first denied that he was guilty. He was questioned at some length at the State Police sub-station by Trooper Shovelin, Corporal Dando and Officer Beck. The little girl was brought to the sub-station to face him.

"That's the fellow, that's him, I know it is," the little girl said in a positive manner. "Yes, that's the blanket that he had on the front seat, it's pink and I remember, and that's the red baseball cap he wore too. That's it," she added.

It was not long afterward that Radosin admitted that he was guilty. His statement was taken by State Police, recorded and signed by the accused. He was committed to the Bucks County Prison for a hearing.

Mrs. Radosin, wife of the accused, was not at home yesterday when her husband was arrested. She is visiting at the shore.

So far as police have been able to learn, Radosin has never before been arrested. He was placed in "2-A" draft classification because of his special knowledge of repairing farm machinery.

Saipan was rainy and windswept that night. The mortar outfit was dug in some 1,000 yards behind the front lines.

Sgt. Earl C. Robertson, of Winchester, Ky., was the first to notice the "Japs."

Robertson awoke to see a line of men walking silently in single file between the two holes. They were carrying heavy equipment and moving forward, toward the front lines. He presumed they were Marines.

A moment later one of them slipped and stepped on a companion's foot. He growled "Take it easy, mate." Then, as Robertson put it, "all hell broke loose."

The "Japs" began screaming, yelling "Banzai," shooting, and running in all directions at once," he said. Most of the Marines admitted with Miss Shirley Lister, a sister of the groom, as maid of honor. Mr. George Doster, Newtown, served Mr. Lister as best man; and ushers were Mr. Michael Rice, West Bristol, brother of the bride; and Mr. Harry Rhodes, West Bristol.

Presiding at the piano was Miss Margaret Zobel, who played the bridal marches, and served as accompanist to the vocalist.

The bride's gown was fashioned of white satin, with a short train. She wore a veil, and carried an arm bouquet of white roses. The trio of attendants wore floor-length gowns of floral design, the off-the-shoulder effect and short puffed sleeves being enhanced with embroidered edging. The maid of honor's gown was of blue flowered material, and those of the bridesmaids in pink. Each wore a ribbon and floral head-piece, and carried an arm bouquet of mixed flowers.

Mr. Lister and bride will reside in Langhorne upon their return from a trip to Atlantic City, N. J.

REAPING THE REWARD

Your generous milk supply today makes you the envy of many less-fortunate nations of the world. It did not happen by accident. Years of work and scientific planning by American farmers make it possible.

Locally, even the nightmare handicaps of insufficient manpower, scarce feeds, transportation difficulties have not prevented Supplee farmers from reaping, for you, the results of our many years of joint effort to improve herds and conditions. They have been able to meet all of these extra war needs for milk:

1. For your community, where war-increased population has upped the demand.
2. For nearby Navy and Coast Guard stations, local hospitals, Army centers.
3. For processing into proper forms for shipment abroad to help nourish our Armies, our fighting Allies, and our friends in liberated countries.

Though peak production is past, you can still get all the fine, rich Supplee Milk you want, through your milk man or woman, or at your local store—and as much as you wish of the milk that's so extra nourishing—carefully guarded
